Frye pushes for fiscal scrutiny of ballot props

Proposal would require IBA analysis of any measure's costs

Councilmember Frye is leading a push for a tougher new municipal ordinance to ensure fiscal accuracy and transparency as a result of a lawsuit she won in March over what the court agreed was deceptive language that hid the potential costs on an upcoming City ballot proposition.

Frye successfully protected the public right to know by challenging the Mayor's Office's fiscal analysis of Proposition D, the "strong mayor" measure that will be on the June 8 ballot. Frye filed suit in San Diego Superior Court, forcing a settlement that resulted in a change in the proposed ballot analysis that removed the misleading and deceptive language.

Proposition D, which would make permanent the "strong mayor" form of government enacted in 2005 for a trial period, includes a provision to expand the City Council to nine seats from eight. The original ballot language had stated the cost of adding a ninth Council office might be as little as $0, when in fact it would cost at least $1 million annually. Frye filed suit to make sure the public would be told the real cost of Prop D.

To ensure that voters will be provided accurate and impartial information in the future, Frye has proposed a Municipal Code revision that would govern how fiscal impact analyses are prepared.

"The public has a right to know what proposed ballot measures will cost when they are considering how to cast their votes. They deserve honest, clear and easy-to-understand language," she said. "These changes will ensure that ballot information is impartial and not written in a deceptive way."

Frye's proposal would amend the Municipal Code to require the City's Independent Budget Analyst (IBA) to prepare a fiscal impact analysis of any proposed ballot measure. Specifically, the Code would require the IBA analysis to "reasonably inform the voters of the proposed measure's fiscal impact and be true, impartial and not argumentative so as to avoid misleading the public with inaccurate information."

The proposal was passed unanimously by the City Council's Rules Committee on April 28 and will be voted on by the full Council within 45 days.

Quarry Falls changes name, seeks first building permits

Massive MV project getting under way with 306-unit apartment complex

The developers of Quarry Falls are renaming their huge Mission Valley residential/commercial project as they begin seeking permits for its first buildings – some 300 apartments near Friars and Mission Center roads.

In coming weeks and months, references to Quarry Falls will include and eventually be replaced by the new moniker, “Civita” – a hybrid of Latin words for “community” and “life.”

Sudberry Properties officials said their marketing experts recommended the name change, in part because a signature waterfall that had been planned to cascade through the development is being turned instead into dry-rock landscaping to conserve water.

“We decided people don’t want to live in a quarry,” Sudberry president Tom Sudberry told the Mission Valley Planning Group. “And with the water shortage, the falls isn’t a good thing.”

Scheduled to be built in phases over 20 years, the Quarry Falls/Civita plan calls for 4,780 apartments, condos and single-family homes and 900,000 square feet of retail/commercial development on what for decades has been a 230-acre sand- and gravel-mining quarry north of Friars Road between Mission Center Road and Interstate 805.

Sudberry Properties has submitted design plans to the City for what it’s calling its Westside Apartments. Plans call for 306 one- to three-bedroom units in three-story buildings accented by four-story mezzanines on 11 acres in the southwestern section of the project site.

A traffic summary included with the plans predicted the complex would generate an average of 1,836 vehicle-trips per day. In an accompanying letter, Sudberry vice president Marco Sessa described that volume as “way below the quantities allowed in the Quarry Falls specific plan.”

The Westside project is being analyzed by the City’s Development Services Department under what is categorized as a “process 1” review, meaning it is within the department’s discretion and requires no public hearings. Development Services project manager Jeanette Temple said the review would probably take two to four months.

Sessa briefed the Mission Valley Planning Group on the apartment project April 7 after bringing it to the group’s Design Advisory Board the previous day.

Additional information is available from Development Services at (619) 446-5000 or from Sudberry Properties at (858) 546-3000 or www.quarryfalls.com.

SeaWorld receives City recycling award

For the 14th time since 1996, District Six aquatic park SeaWorld San Diego has received a “Recycler of the Year” award from the City of San Diego.

City officials presented the park a commemorative plaque in an April 21 ceremony at SeaWorld. Twelve other organizations also were honored for innovative waste reduction and recycling last year. SeaWorld’s efforts include food scrap composting and recycling of construction materials, bottles and cans.

Last year the park recycled more than 4.5 million pounds of manure, paper and plastic products, metals, greenery, food scraps, wet-suits, pallets, cooking oil, demolition debris and batteries.

Linda Vista fair & parade celebrate cultural diversity

Hundreds of participants revel at 25th annual festival

Colorful dancers, marching bands, classic cars and plenty of rides for the kids combined under cloudless skies to make the 25th annual Linda Vista Multicultural Fair a rousing success last month. Councilmember Frye waved to the throng lining Linda Vista Road for the parade, and then joined state Assemblymember Lori Saldaña in handing out awards to elementary and middle-school winners of the annual art and essay contests.

River Days will officially kick off at 8:30 a.m. Saturday, May 8 at the Promenade in Mission Valley, 2185 Station Village Way. The opening event will include a river-trail walk, free snacks and reusable grocery bags.

Other highlights will include:

- Wild and scenic river hike, 9 a.m. May 8.
- Exploring early San Diego history on foot, 9 a.m. May 8.

Sprague, Lettau lauded; jazz greats perform at City Hall

Frye, Council proclaim day for them in recognition

Donna Frye honored a well-known jazz duo with a proclamation that made April 27, 2010 “Peter Sprague and Kevyn Lettau Day” in the City of San Diego. Guitarist Sprague and vocalist Lettau, who have performed throughout the nation and the world in careers spanning 30 years, delighted members of the Council and the audience by performing “Love Music,” a composition by Brazilian jazz great Sergio Mendes. Frye noted that Sprague and Lettau first united in the Dance of the Universe Orchestra in 1978 and, after many years of performing separately, reunited in 2008 to produce the CD “What is Enough?” “Through their music, Peter and Kevyn have provided such joy to so many people for so many years,” Frye said. “It’s a delight to be able to honor them and a great joy to fill this chamber with song.”

Kids, volunteers make Tecolote Canyon Day a big success

About 60 youngsters from Linda Vista elementary schools immersed themselves in the wilds of Tecolote Canyon on April 16, a few months after more than 120 volunteers spent hours hauling hundreds of pounds of trash and recyclables out of the treasured canyon. Councilmember Frye addressed the school kids, reminding them that as they get older it will be their responsibility to tend to our precious urban canyons, to make sure they are clean and well-cared for so all residents may enjoy them. The Third Annual Canyon Clean-Up and Canyon Classroom events were sponsored by Mesa College, whose campus is adjacent to Tecolote Canyon as it bends through the heart of District Six.

Know what to look for before signing that ballot petition

Secretary of State offers voters practical advice for election season

With 80 initiative proposals circulating throughout California, Secretary of State Debra Bowen reminds voters of their rights and responsibilities when deciding whether to sign petitions.

“Anyone walking into a grocery store knows election season is in full swing,” said Bowen, California’s chief elections officer. “Voters have many rights when it comes to dealing with petition circulators, and it is important that voters not be bashful in exercising those rights.”

Voters may call the Secretary of State’s Voter Hotline at (800) 345-VOTE to ask election-related questions, or to report potential election fraud or voter intimidation.

The initiative process allows any citizen to place a measure on a statewide ballot to create or change laws, or amend the state constitution. After the Attorney General writes an official title and summary for a proposed initiative, the Secretary of State provides calendar deadlines to the proponent and to county elections officials. The initiative proponent then has 150 days to circulate petitions for the measure and collect the required number of voter signatures to place the initiative on the ballot.

The deadline to qualify an initiative for the Nov. 2 General Election is June 24. (The deadline to qualify an initiative for the June ballot has already passed.) For details of Initiatives currently in circulation and contact information for the proponents, visit www.sos.ca.gov/elections/ballot-measures/cleared-for-circulation.htm.

Here are some recommendations from the state Secretary:

- DO: Ask a petition circulator if he or she is being paid to collect signatures. The law allows circulators to be paid per signature collected; you have a right to ask about it.
- DON’T: Accept any incentive to sign a petition. It is illegal under state law for a circulator to pay for your signature.
- DO: Know your right to change your mind. Any voter who has signed an initiative petition may withdraw the signature by filing a written request with her or his county elections official. The signature withdrawal request must be received before the proponent submits the petition to the county.
- DON’T: Sign if you can’t see the entire petition. By law, the initiative’s official title and summary must be printed across the top of the petition page where you sign. The full text must also be available to you. It is illegal for a petition circulator to obscure the official title and summary from your view.
- DO: Equip yourself with the facts. In addition to reading the official title and summary on the petition, you can research any of the initiatives in circulation at www.sos.ca.gov/elections/ballot-measures/cleared-for-circulation.htm.
- DO: Be a registered voter. Only registered voters may sign. To check, call your county elections office. Contact information is at www.sos.ca.gov/elections/elections_d.htm.
